Dewan of Mysore

Respected Sir

On the Indian Ladys Magazine issued for the month of April 1903 I observe with gre-t regret that one Saraswate a native girl of Mangalore, South Canara District, now a girl Studen in the Maharani Institution is an unnatural born to a prostitute She is not only a Sudra but has clasped herself in the high class of Hindoo widows (See Illustration Indian Magazine April

In fact the above said girl has got a husband at Panemangalore leading an honest life of a blacksmith The husband after observing her objectionable character tried to advise her but She was not agreeing and the final result Ended in absconding from her good husband Her Husbands name is Naga and thus She is not a widow Her mother was a Keep of one Annandan a Thiya familiarly known as Sanars in Mysore and he died of plague at Bombay

It reflects very much upon the Directors of the Maharanis institution that an Enquiry ought to have been taken before the Hindoo Widow girl Sar was being admitted to institute before I beg your Honor

Honor kindly lay the matter before the Maharanee the Directors of the Institution in order that the same may not be henceforth become an Asylum for Indias unnatural born daughters

If your Honor requires further information about Saraswats the pretended widow the same will be given if referred to Mr R Venkat Rau a gentleman who is very popular in Mangalore

I beg to remain
Respected Sir
Your most obedient Servant
A Raghavendra Rau
